MISSION STATEMENT

The mission of the Department of Health and Human Performance is to produce:

- Exercise Science specialists ready to enter into graduate programs or professional, research, or clinical settings.
- Exercise Science with Strength and Conditioning specialists ready to implement knowledge and skills in the practical strength training environments and be eligible to take an exam to become nationally Certified Strength and Conditioning Specialists (CSCS).
- Health Promotion-Wellness specialists ready for a wide variety of programs utilizing wellness components.
- Physical Education Teachers ready to implement “best practices” in health, physical education, and adapted physical education using the Wisconsin State Teaching Standards.
- Provide all university students the opportunity to develop positive concepts of wellness and skills to participate in lifetime wellness activities.

ABOUT THE HEALTH AND HUMAN PERFORMANCE DEPARTMENT

Our Exercise Science emphasis is designed to prepare graduates for professional workplace research settings and acceptance into graduate schools for advanced studies in areas such as, but not limited to, athletic training, clinical exercise physiology, physical therapy, occupational therapy, public health, chiropractic health care, and kinesiology.

The Exercise Science with Strength and Conditioning emphasis prepares students with the scientific knowledge, practical skills, and professional experience needed to enhance human performance and promote lifelong fitness through evidence-based training practices. This program also prepares students to sit for the premier strength and conditioning exam to become Certified Strength and Conditioning Specialists (CSCS) through the National Strength and Conditioning Association.

The Health Promotion-Wellness emphasis within the Health and Human Performance major, prepares our graduates to serve as future wellness and fitness career professionals advocating for the development of positive health behaviors and facilitating preventative health care in private, corporate, and public wellness settings. In addition, many graduates of the health promotion emphasis also use this undergraduate degree in preparation for acceptance into graduate exercise science programs.

The Physical Education-Teaching emphasis is a comprehensive program which prepares our graduates to meet the diverse needs of three different licensure certifications: K-12 Physical Education, Health Education, and Adapted Physical Education teaching endorsed by the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction (DPI).

The Coaching Minor is designed to provide students with knowledge, skills, and experiences that will enable them to coach effectively and safely in school, community-youth, and adult sports programs.

The Health Education Minor is only available to students with a major in Health and Human Performance Majors with an Emphasis in Physical Education Teaching, B.S.

The Health Promotion Minor is for students looking to advocate for the development of positive health behaviors and facilitate preventative health care in private, corporate, or public wellness settings.

The Sports Management Minor will develop management and leadership skills in applying marketing concepts, understanding legal concepts and risk management. It will develop the various skills, roles, and functions that are important for a person who wants to work in the sports industry.

The University of Wisconsin-Platteville values the development of general and discipline specific knowledge and skills of all university students. In addition, the health and wellness of our students is also a focus of our general education commitment to fostering the development of the whole student. Each student can only reach their full potential when they are at their most optimal levels of health.
